

The Future

The long-range plan of the Life Foundation is to accomplish a Renaissance-- to awaken humanity to a dramatically new concept of existence. At the core of the new way of life will be the ancient philosophy that all things are ~~interrelated~~^{interrelated}, that no man is an island, that the slayer and the slain are one.

By an actual physical process, the true spirit (that which partakes of the divine) ⁱⁿ each man will be released, ridding him of the ~~false~~^{false} selves of ego and pride. Each man will feel uplifted, rejuvenated, at home in the world for the first time, and as if nature were somehow for him, with him, in him--and not relentlessly opposed to him. Life will no longer seem like an uphill climb.

In the new life a man will fear neither God (nature) nor his fellow man. He will leave off overcoming nature, conquering her, as he will leave off seeking to compete with and overcome his brother. Men will flourish together in a spirit of cooperation and harmony. They will regain their faith in nature, and once again experience her as a benevolent, nurturing, healing mother. Each man will be free of the chains of ego, the need for fame and self-aggrandizement. He will experience his own holiness, the holiness of his neighbor, and the holiness of the entire created universe.

CH We will, in the near future, establish a self-contained community, The City of Life, which will have as its focal point, Life University. This city shall consist of homes, condominiums, retirement cottages, nursing homes, orphan homes, student housing, convention sites, a complete agricultural complex, and shopping facilities. The City of Life shall be founded upon and dedicated to the lofty principles outlined above.

Pervaded by an atmosphere of love and unanimity, The City of Life will flourish and prosper, and will stand as a model to the world and to countless future generations as the maximum in human achievement. In time, zealous crusaders will go out from The City of Life, and the renaissance, the new way, will radiate to the far corners of the earth like spokes from a wheel.

And the City of Life will be as a central beacon . . . whose light grows and spreads . . . and ultimately encompasses the darkness.
